Josie,

Jack should consider himself trained as an SSC...in my view at least. We offered the course a few times. All those who attended, regardless of format, should consider themselves trained. The SSC is not a KLP position... this was very sensitive to the Removal Managers, since they didn't want to be 3 deep on these too. There is also some controversy regarding Special Team members, who really don't like the "coordinator" part of the job. My frank opinion is that scientific minded OSCs understand that part and also bring the scientific expertise to be good SSCs. That has not been resolved and HQ cut the funding (I think) to give the course again.
